Make a Door Hanger Reminder

Cut craft foam into large shapes. Lay the shapes on a table with stickers, large labels, markers, a hole punch, and chenille stems. Comment that sometimes people do not make right choices. Ask children to think of ways they should treat their family members. They can draw pictures or print words on the labels. Guide them to stick these labels and other stickers on the foam shapes. You may want to provide labels printed with the Bible verse to add to the reminders. When a child finishes his reminder help him punch two holes at the top. He can insert the ends of a chenille stem through the holes and twist the ends together. Tell him he can hang the reminder on his bedroom door or other place to remember how to treat family members. Talk about the Bible story while children work.

Write in the Sand

Lay brightly colored paper in the bottom of a tray or shallow box. Cover the paper with a thin layer of sand. Suggest to a child that she use her finger or a small brush to make lines in the sand. (The colored paper will make the lines more visible through the sand.) She could make designs or letters in the sand. As she works, talk about the sandy roads that people used in Bible times. Tell the Bible story.

Build a City

Place cardboard pieces with the wooden blocks. Encourage children to think of ways to use the materials to build. As they create structures, mention that their structures look like buildings in a city. Talk about places mentioned in the Bible story.
